From 50-year-old vines on tuff limestone and vinified in tanks for six months, the 2019 Chinon Chante le Vent opens with a bright, fresh and elegant bouquet of perfectly ripe white and yellow fruits intertwined with lovely chalk aromas. Fresh, even piquant and with fine mineral grip and lingering ripe pear aromas on the palate, this is a medium-weight, fresh and stimulating Chenin Blanc from Chinon that already drinks beautifully, especially with fish and white meat. The finish is clear, crisp and well-structured, with refreshing lemon juice notes.

From roughly 60-year-old vines on an east/southeast-facing slope of tuff limestone, picked late and super ripe and partly overripe or even botrytized, the full-bodied 2017 Chinon La Part des Anges opens with concentrated and intensely aromatic fruit with flinty and some spicy tannic notes. Vinified in 500-liter oak barrels for 15 months and another six months in stainless steel, the low-yielding Part des Anges (38 hectoliters per hectare) is a rich, round and elegant, even fresh and mineral Chenin that reveals an intense and concentrated texture with serious tannins on the complex and sustainable finish. I would decant the wine for one to three hours and drink it from a Burgundy glass. 14.3% alcohol.

The 2018 Chinon Les Chiens Chiens comes from 50-year-old vines on silty clay soils. It was macerated for 25 days and aged in 500-liter oak barrels for 12 months and another four months in stainless steel tanks. The wine opens floral and elegant on the bright and inviting nose, offering dark fruit and floral aromas. Juicy, piquant and stimulating fresh, this is a medium-bodied bistro red with charm and enough grip to pair with roast beef.

The 2018 Chinon Pierre de Tuf comes from two plots planted on "cornuelles" (flint clay) in 1947 and 1953. Macerated for several weeks in an ancient vat carved into limestone in the 15th century, aged in 500-liter oak barrels for 14 months and for another four months in tank, this is an enormously concentrated yet finessed and elegant, even charming Cabernet Franc with beautiful freshness without being all too vibrant. The nose shows perfectly ripe and elegant, spicy and limestone-driven fruit, and on the palate, this is a highly elegant pairing of finesse and silk with ripeness and concentration. A fabulous Chinon that is not built on power but on intensity and finesse!
